8th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Remove the wooden beam from your own eyes first

Each of us finds it easy to jump on the faults of others and criticize their mistakes. We are often quick to point out the flaws of others but fail to see and correct our own shortcomings and weaknesses. The readings for this Sunday challenge us to overcome this hypocritical and judgmental attitude in our lives. The readings call us to acknowledge our own sins, to ask for God's pardon and strive to be decent in our words, thoughts, and actions.

In the gospel, Jesus tells us that a blind person cannot guide a blind person because both will fall into a pit. He cautions us against hypocrisy and urges us to remove the wooden beam from our own eyes first, before correcting the mistakes and faults of other people. We should strive to live good moral lives so we can help others to take the splinter from their eyes.

Using the metaphor of a tree and its fruit, Jesus teaches us a lesson that a person out of the store of goodness in his or her heart produces what is good while an evil person produces wickedness or what is destructive.

The kingdom of God is about bearing fruit. As a tree is judged by the quality of its fruit, we too are known by the kind of fruit we produce in our daily lives. We become a good tree when we make our words and actions reflect God's love and goodness to others. We produce good fruit when we treat one another with respect, patience, understanding, love, compassion, and kindness.

In the first reading, Ben Sirach, the author of the book of Ecclesiasticus advises us to be careful about how we speak. In this book of literature of wisdom, Ben Sirach reminds us that our words and our actions define who we are or our character. The author says that just as a sieve is shaken for the husks to appear, we should be conscious of our words or think before we speak. As Christian disciples, we need to always speak the truth from a kind and gentle heart. We need to encourage one another to grow our faith and strive to live better Christian lives.

Saint Paul exhorts us in the second reading to never lose heart persevering in our efforts to grow in perfection. He urges us to be firm and steadfast and always devoted to the work of the Lord, trusting that our labor will not be in vain. In Christ, we have the hope of eternal life. We believe that after the trials of this earthly life we shall be with God to spend eternity with Him in heaven. Until then, we need to continue to immerse ourselves in spiritual things. As we prepare ourselves for the season of Lent this week, it is important that we each identify our blind spots such as how we speak ill of others and fail to see our own imperfections and correct them. Let us all welcome the season of Lent wholeheartedly and seek to be renewed in holiness and grace. With the Psalmist, let us offer thanks and praise to God for His enduring kindness and faithfulness towards us. God bless,

What are you giving up for Lent?

Here are 5 ideas that might prove challenging but they may help to actively cultivate virtue and really target our faults.

- 1-Mortify your will through the practice of obedience-do this by cheerfully serving the people in your life.
- 2-Attend especially to the tasks you don't like doing.
- 3-Embrace annoyances-when others annoy you, examine yourself and discern how you, too, act or think in that way.
- 4-Impose a strict watch on your tongue.
- 5-Check impulsive actions-will this action really help anyone?

Word of Life Bulletin Quotes

The Gospel of Life is "meant to be a precise and vigorous reaffirmation of the value of human life and its inviolability, and at the same time a pressing appeal addressed to each and every person, in the name of God: respect, protect, love and serve life, every human life! Only in this direction will you find justice, development, true freedom, peace and happiness!" (The Gospel of Life 5).
