Sixteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

The readings this Sunday can give us a great deal of hope that we will be among the sons and daughters of God who will spend eternity with the Lord. If we reflect on the first parable in the Gospel, we might realize that we are something like the field in the Kingdom of Heaven. We have both good and evil in us, yet we are not destroyed because of the evil in us because our God is preserving the good. God is patient and full of mercy. He gives us all the time we need to repent from our sinfulness so we can be gathered into His eternal kingdom. He gives us the seeds of faith which have great power to grow strong in us and overcome the evil tendencies that we are all plagued with. Just like the mustard seeds which grows to be a powerful plant and the yeast that is able to cause the whole loaf to rise. The seeds of faith can grow powerful within us. God also gives us his Holy Spirit to dwell within us to pray on our behalf and guide us to know what is good and pleasing to Him. Today's first reading says it all. Although our God, creator of the whole universe, is the master of might. He judges us with clemency and much leniency. He cultivates the soil around us and waters the seeds of faith within us that we will be able to bear good fruit. God mercifully gives us all a great hope that our repentance will lead us to the riches of His kingdom where we will rest securely in His care for all eternity. So, let us yield to the prompting of His Spirit in our lives that we will be ready for the day he gathers us.

May God's blessings be with you all. Deacon Warren
